

Voice Over 101 – INT - Paper 6

Using Your FULL Vocal Range & 3 Registers

Objective: Your “3” primary vocal “registers” including your lower, middle and upper voice registers.

Lower Register: Also known as “bass” or “bass alto” your lower register. This LOW range is the musical range, or vocal range between the lower “g to the middle c” in the music scale”. Typically used for dramatic effect, corp, psa, serious, intense, or darker voice over reads.

Middle Register: Typically called “alto or baritone” by choirs, singers, and ensembles, this MID range is the tone using our middle voice pitch, or the “middle c to g” in musical terms. Many times this is the standard voice range, or your normal “talking range” or tone. Usually this is where most normal voice over reads and emotions are found.

Upper Register: Called a “tenor” or soprano” this is the HIGHEST of the main vocal types that most people would be familiar with. The typical tenor or soprano vocal range is between the middle “g note and high c” or one octave above middle cd. Usually this range is used for excitement, high energy, anger, or very aggressive reads,

NOTE: Understanding more about the 3 main voice over ranges help us to better understand more about how to make “musical use” out of our voice thinking in terms of our voice as a instrument. Knowing each “voice range” will help you determine the tone, music key, or pitch of which we deliver our vocals. Our goal is to achieve the right voice over range.
